Mr. Verstegen shows Mrs. Magan another task to be completed before her long day ends of 5:00.

Mrs. Mogan shows Mrs. Diercks how to run off a master, one of the jobs she took on to help Mrs. Magan with her many office duties.

Mrs. Magan has many jobs as a high school secretary; she not only does office work, but also serves as a friend or advisor.

At the end of a year in which many evenings and weekends were spent in the preparation of our annual, we choose some special person to dedicate our annual to. Just as the annual is a representative of a year of school life, so this person must also be a worthy representative of our school. There are indeed many worthy persons but we have endeavored to choose a person who is both respected and liked by the student body. A person to whom we have all, at sometime, looked for understanding and guidance, who is eager to help and encourage us, who will always accupy a unique place in our memories and for whom we have a special feeling. So it is with very deep appreciation for your many kindnesses that we dedicate the 1966 Greywolf to you, Mrs. Magan.

Each year the staff trys to bring into socus one aspect of school life to make the student more aware of its presence, to make the annual more than a reference book. Some say we spend too much time developing our theme instead of making sure that everyone's picture is on every page possible. However, we try to bit a bappy medium, the only solution without giving up our one chance to say that school is more than clubs, turnouts and classes. School is the sum of what one can gain from these activities. One part of this sum is . . . maturity.

Maturity grows through competition and contact with students of the various classes. Whether attempting to put on a class play or working together on a lab experiment, the process is continuing Continuing to try to make us into something a little bit better than when the year began.

CANDLELIGHT AND ROYALTY ADDED

ROMANCE TO A PARISIAN THEME

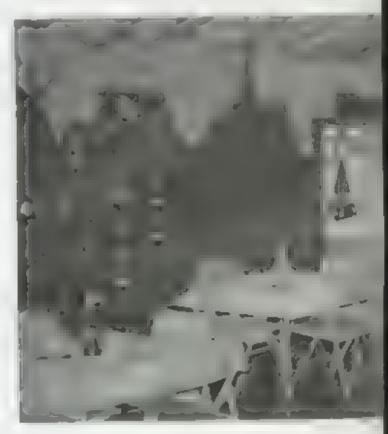

General chairman, Laurie Teitzel, gets a point across concerning prom plans with the help of decorations chairman, Cathy Black.

Juniors worked right up to the last moment to finish the Eiffel Tower, their floor piece.

Travel posters from Paris accent the french theme.

Waiting in silence for the guests and music the Junior Prom was ready for its 9 00 debut.

The Junior Class hosted the Seniors, on April 30, to an evening in Paris. "Paris by Night," under the guidance of general chairman, Laurie Teitzel, was an evening to be long remembered. This year a royal court reigned during the evening. The juniors spent many long hours trying to make April 30 a special evening for all concerned. They ran up against many problems, trying to use new ideas on decorations, refreshments, and program. But, through the efforts of many people, the Junior Prom though long time coming was a happy success.

A parision fountain and a shining tree enhanced the French motiff of "Paris by Night,"

SENIORS PAY EXPENSES

November was the first busy month for the seniors, because the traditional dance and play were both within a week of each other. November 19, the mystery-comedy, Inside Lester, was performed for the adult audience with a few interesting ad-libs. November 27, a discotheque, " '66 A Go-Go'', was held in the multipurpose room with pop art for wall decorations.

Co-operation was the key word for the 1966 senior class functions, turning out two fine productions.

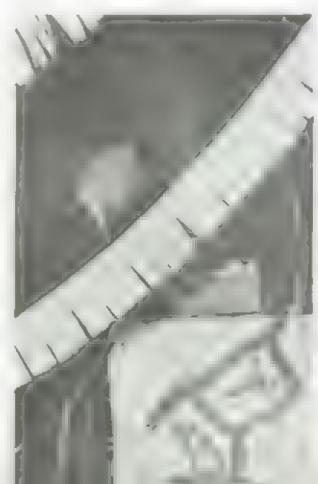

Arlene Tremsland, decoration chairman, won one of the LP's given away by the D.J.

Go-Go doncers, rearmette (pictured) and Pam Echternkomp, added the final touch to the discotheque.

Tensions were shared by members of the cast before their first performance.

The class of '66 launched into high school with the most successful Sophomore Hop in many years. However, hampered by becoming the smallest class their senior year, they experrenced difficulty in maintaining a majority, governing membership in activities. Despite such difficulties this senior group managed to represent their class in all student body functions, and exh b ted outstanding performances in football, debate, F.F.A. and thespians. For the first time, they become aware and oppreciative of each other as a group. Perhaps they realized that for the last time they would be together with a single goal, graduation, to make them a group. They realized, also, that even at reunions, they would be individuals and not the Senior Class that they were in '66.

GRADUATION - "A GOAL ACHIEVED, A FUTURE

Seniors were proud to finally move up on the stage at awards assembly, which signified their graduation to come.

During the final week before commencement, the seniors were involved in a flurry of activities; slumber parties, finals, banquets, and baccalaureate and graduation practices. This occurred at a time when they were cought in the realization that soon their high school days would be ended. The class motto, "A Goal Achieved, A Future Begun," expressed the mood and excitement of graduation night, June 1. Class colors of lavender and white and their flower, the litac, remain as symbols of the class of '66.

Zeke and Anna-Ma a explained to each other the location and customs at the rihome ands.

Soon after her arrival, Anna-Maia was introduced to the excitement of a high school faotball game.

FOREIGN STUDENTS

Anna Maia Andreson's eagerness to learn, to understand our ways, equaled our joy in being able to show her these American customs. Anna Maia spent her time in many activities while maintaining a high grade point average. Anna Maia was sponsored by the American Field Service. When she returned to France, she planned to continue her education to become a lawyer. We connot forget the happiness she shared with us when she brought France to Sequim.

Anno-Maia gained new experence through her home life as well as at school. She washed dishes with her sister Pat, as a daily chore.

INCREASE OUR INTEREST IN OTHER PEOPLES

Perhaps, Ezekiel Kariuki is most remembered for his determination to gain an American education and to learn our methods, so he can work to improve the agriculture conditions in his homeland, Kenya, Africa. We called him Zeke and felt fortunate to be his friends. Through the year Zeke lived and worked at Dents' farm. Zeke has earned our deep appreciation for helping us to understand other peoples, other ideas, other ways.

The whale student body looked forward to meeting our exchange student, Anna-Mara.

Zeke errived bright and early every morning to attend his eight a clock class, chemistry.

Anna-Maia gained a greater love for animals, especially her horse, during her stay on an American form.

STUDENT ACTIVITIES

Every two weeks the student council members, leaders and representatives of the school organizations, met to co-ordinate the students activities. In the fall, they planned the homecoming activities and purchased new records for the dance and crowns for the royalty. They sponsored a pep dance in December to earn money for the "Help Teddy Walk" fund and to earn money for themselves, a Donkey Basketball game at the beginning of basketball season. Preceding the dance, school spirit was bolstered by the burning of the dummy. Even though we were beaten by Port Townsend, our team put up a brave fight. The high-light of these was a field trip to Seattle where they visited the Repretory Theater and saw the Russian play, The Cherry Orchard by Checov. Kathy Grant, vice president, Dorls Thomsen, president, Dennis Craig, treasurer, and Sherry Wood, secretary, met during their lunch hour to discuss last minute plans for a special Honor Society assembly.

Sen or members await their turn to speak at the vocat and assembly.

Honor Society centered its activities around the encouragement of scholarship this year with a tutoring program and an educational column in the school paper. In February they sponsored an assembly featuring a speech on non-college careers. Profits from popcorn and candy sales financed a field trip and the annual scholarship award.

Margaret Sanford, an Honor Society popcorn seller, sold her last bag during heatra half-time.

Breto Smith prepares her affirmative argument with the help of Mr. Nash,

A big topic and only a little preparation time were the major worries of the debate team this year. The team started late in the season with five of the six members new to debate. Under the guidance of Mr. Nash, director, the team practiced hard to prepare for the first debate in only two weeks. Although the Sequim team didn't make any winning records, they worked hard and proved that winning isn't the most important part of an activity, but more the experience and knowledge they gained, and the fun.

DEBATORS RALLY TO ARGUE DIFFICULT TOPIC

F.F.A. boys set up the concessions stand prior to football season, under the direction of advisor, Mr. Lofdahl.

The Sequim Chapter of the Future Formers of America took a step forward in making their chapter into an industrious organization. With help from Mr. Lofdahl, advisor, the chapter formed a Dairy and Livestock judging team, parliamentary team, and participated in public speaking contests. The chapter also worked hard on projects including pruning trees and working with livestock. Through buying new equipment and increasing in membership, they should increase their activities, whether in money-making projects or in competition with other chapters.

F.F.A. awards, won last summer, were displayed on the bulletin board in the main hall.

During the 1966 school year, the Sequim Chapter of the Future Homemakers of America was hampered by being able to have meetings after the regular school hours, only. In spite of this, the girls, with the assistance of their advisor, Mrs. Spath, decorated the holls at Christmas time and other such projects. With the coming of spring, plans for their traditional Daddy Date Night, to be held April 6, were discussed.

This year's band developed into a good marching group as well as a concert band. During football season, they performed marching drills with the leadership of three majorettes. In December the music department presented a Christmas Concert and in April a Spring Concert. The Christmas Concert was highlighted by a selection in which all the vocal groups and the band performed together. Through the efforts of many students and director, James Wilson, the music department did an admirable job representing the student body through music.

The Tea, entitled ''Roses and Raindrops," featured Sequim's "introduction to spring" fashions under the direction of Gayle Ball and Robyn Johnson. The models displayed the products of their year's sewing, providing a wide selection of weaves and prints, in a variety of styles. A singing group, the sextet, song two selections as the entertoinment of the evening. To the delight of the honored Mothers, the tea and fashion show both ran smoothly.

G.A.A. began their season in full swing with volleyball and badminton tournaments which provided lively entertainment to all members. Highlighting the season activities was the campout held at Heart of the Hill. The hike to Lake Angeles was invigorating despite a few accidental swims in the lake.

G.A.A. members find the water appreciably warm after "taking the plunge" into their new sports activity last fall.

EMPHASIZED SPORTS PARTICIPATION

Lettermen advisor, Mr. Greathouse, discusses plans for the new trophy case with Al Hawley.

Lettermen are actively putting into reality the plans which they made last year to build a new trophy case. This case will be built to display the trophies, and hopefully to inspire the boys to put forth a bigger and better effort in all competition. The lettermen sold sno-cones, a major project, to finance this activity.

Lettermen officers, A. Hawley, president, Lovie Kardonsky, vice president; John Witte, secretary-treasurer; look over the present trophy case in order to find ways of improving it.

Dave Blake shows other lettermen how to use the sno-cone machine previous to the demolition derby.

Although the cheering section can be in agony over the excitement of Jour overtimes, or in agony over our team being trounced, the team feels it more and thus gains more out of sports. An extreme example was of the boys who had gumption enough to try to establish track here once again. They would sometimes start an event knowing they had no chance of excelling, but they would still try, if for only the joy of competition; and, maturity wise, became the better for doing so.

ERRORS AND INJURIES

Wolves display aggressive blacking against the stronger Vashon Pirates.

Despite early season losses, the wolves, with the help of an efficient coaching staff, continued to improve their potential abilities. With a tremendous effort, both offensively and defensively, the wolves developed impressive ball handling, aggressiveness and a grave desire to win. This effort and desire was shown particularly in the Vashon game where the wolves demonstrated a ground gaining offense and hard hitting defense, only to lose 6-0 in the closing minutes. In spite of their many injuries throughout the season, the wolves won three of their last four games, giving the coaches and student body a great deal of satisfaction knowing that the *65 wolves never gave up.

VARSITY FINDS SEASON TOUGH BUT

The Sequim Wolves started slow but came on strong to complete their '65-'66 season with an 8-12 record. The lack of confidence, poise and student body support were determining factors in this final record. These scores don't show, however, what fine basketball the wolves played at times, with full support from Coach Riehl. To highlight the season, the wolves took the league leading Townsend Red-skins into four overtimes, only to lose 49-51. Looking to next year, the wolves have an extremely good chance of winning the league title, with the return of five junior lettermen.

SCHOOL SPIRIT

Optimistically, the cheerleaders looked forward to the chance to improve Sequim's school spirit and team support. The Spirit Jug - a novelty for rousing enthusiasm among the classes - was introduced at the pep assemblies. The class of 67 proved to be the most energetic. Efforts were also turned toward reorganizing Pep Club and revising its constitution. For the first time, members chose a uniform and emblem to be the afficial uniform for Pep Club. Although school spirit didn't amount to what was expected, it is hoped that with the improved Pep Club, next year's cheering staff will have a good start for increased pep.

WOLVES PO

The Sequim diamond men had tough competition this year, plus a lack of pitching ability and experience. Having trouble at bat and in the field, they constantly improved right up to the last game. This improvement showed best in the no-hitter with Angeles. They lost, though, through costly errors in the final inning. Coach Harriman worked the boys hard for a rough season, but he had some entertaining and humorous moments because of the sportsmanlike attitude of the whole team.

TRACK BEGINS AGAIN WITH ENCOURAGING

Inspirational Award winner Chuck Simon demonstrates determination in the mice run against Bainbridge.

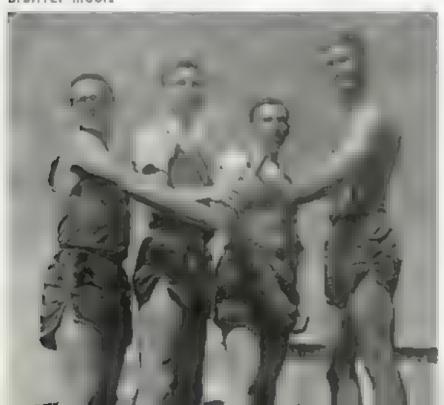

High umper Jay Lancaster leaps high in practicing for the meet with Vashon and North Mason.

Three fine hurdlers, Dale Turton, Dave Janssen and Mike Carrow, worked hard to gain the form necessary to excell.

The mile relay team, Dennis Brownfield, Mike Corrow, Chuck Simon, and Craig Smith, placed sixth at the district meet.

R chard Wiggins, consistant winner in the 220 and 100 yard dash practices at the starting blocks.

SUCCESS

In Javelin, Mike McCrone, throwing, Dick Johnson and Pete Halden put forth fine performances all teason with Dick receiving sixth place at District.

Craig Smith, who went on to the District meet, worked with teammates, Alan Hawley and Mike McCrarie, to prepare for the sub-district qualifying meet.

The new start in track was an extreme success for the Sequim Wolves in 1966. The boys turning out found that track was an entirely new sport because it was an individual sport where a boy's success was entirely up to his own personal effort. The team had a disappointing start at Lakeside but imporved enough to be in contention at every meet. There were no records broken, but the team put forth a tremendous effort in beginning a sport that had died out nine years ago. With more team effort, track will continue at Sequim. If Sequim has more successful seasons, records will be made and broken.

Pole vaulters, Jack Richardson, vaulting, Trevor Gloor and Jim Bartos, showed the most improvement during the season.

GIRLS' AND BOYS' TENNIS TEAMS MET

Sherry Wood and Sandy York synchronized efforts for a smooth moving doubles team.

Our Girls' tennis team overcame highly competitive opposition. They had a successful season because of a series of exciting close matches. The experience of the lettermen combined with the interest and enthusiasm by the newcomers, resulted in a fine 1966 record.

LIVELY COMPETITION

Dennis Craig races toward the net to place a fast and strategic return.

The Boys' tennis team faced a hard season this year. Their only returning letterman was Dennis Craig. A three year man, Dennis supported the squad in the top singles spot. The squad earned a fair position with several near wins. But, as Coach Greathouse would say "Close ones don't count."

JUNIOR HIGH SECTION CHALLENGES STAFF

Larry Robbins, sports editor, looks for information to help him complete the junior high football section

Part of the reason of the success of this year's Greywolf is due to the hard working junior high annual staff. Through the efforts of an efficient staff, with the assistance of a most tolerable editor they produced a section which incorporated many new ideas.

PEP SQUAD BACKS TEAM

The pep squad for the year '65-'66 added a pep promoter to assist them in supporting the Cubs. Also their inspiring Pep Assemblies led to greater attendance at all games. Their enthusiastic cheers and cheering section may have been a deciding factor in the Cubs exceptional season.

CUBS EARN AN UNDEFEATED SEASON

The Cubs had a very impressive 1965 season. They accomplished something which has not been done since 1949, an undefeated season! This success was due to the determination of the boys who developed into a well-rounded team under the guidance and encouragement of their coaches, Mr. Copeland and Mr. Greathouse.

Though the team had only two weeks to prepare for the season, they worked hard, practicing both on Saturdays and in the evenings to build up an affense based on exceptional running and passing tactics and a defense that derived its strength from blocking and tackling tactics. The previous experiences of many of the players also added to the team's strength. Their efforts were successful and the team had a completely victorious season.

The freshmen Cubs started their '65-'66 season out well, but then lost two halfway through the season. They made a complete recovery, however, and came through with a 9-2 season standing. Under the supervision of Coach Copeland, they learned much about the game of basketball. From the combined results of their football and basketball season, there seems to be much in store for the football and junior varsity squads next year.

TEAM EFFORT RESULTS IN SOFTBALL VICTORY

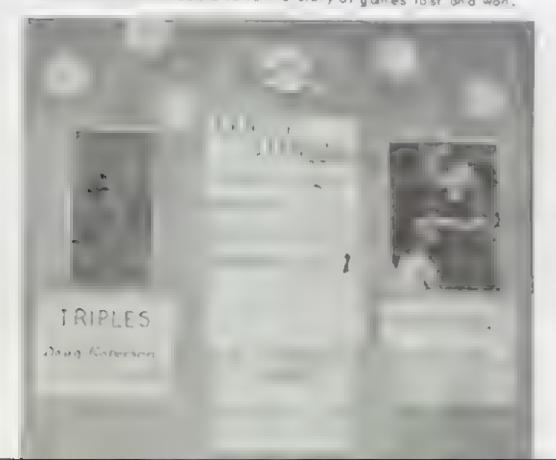

Gene Rogers . we is for a do te

This year as in preceding years spring was the starting point for another softball season. Four teams were organized in two rounds of play. In each round teams competed with all the other teams. The winner of each round robin then entered in a series of three games to determine the overall champion. Darryl Sanford's team won the championship.

TRACK INSPIRES INDIVIDUAL EFFORT

Dan Campbell takes note of Schade's discus technique.

For the first time there has been a track program in the junior high. Although the turnout could have been greater, those participating were dedicated. Ron Newton coached the boys and led them to a successful season, always stressing the fact that track is an individual effort, and if a team member breaks the tope first or jumps highest or throws farthest he, himself, knows that it is his personal victory.

Mike Tinnesand attempts to vault over a new height.

JUNIOR HIGH CHORUS ACQUIRES EXPERIENCE THROUGH SEVERAL APPEARANCES

The freshmen class with a lot of time and practice turned out to be a remarkable singing group. Joining the high school at the Christmas Concert and the Spring Concert, they presented, among others, the arrangement, "The Friendly Beast." In April the charus performed before the P.T.A. and sang folk and religious songs. The new charus program provided the needed experience and background for a more interested senior high charus, hopefully conveying to the students a greater appreciation of singing and music. Any applause or other kind of reward was the result of the many hours put in outside the classroom by both the students and instructor, Mr. Wilson. Their group consisted of about seventy members and met two days a week replacing health classes held in previous years.

THE EDITOR AND STAFF'S FINAL SAY

Dear Readers,

It is our fervent hope that you thoroughly enjoy and appreciate this year's GREYWOLF. We have spent much time and work attempting to put out the best one we know how.

We also hope that instead of looking for your picture only, you will take a look at it as a whole, and try to understand what we did to make this book unique. You'll find a broad hint if you read the copy on the editor's combination photo-essay, division pages.

We've had our say, except that we would like to thank you for being at Sequim High School, so that we could have the fun and experience putting out an annual about and for you.

Sincerely yours,
The 1966 GREYWOLF staff

Kathy Grant

Editor
